Introduction

The Allworth Financial visual identity was evolved and advanced to move the brand presence “upmarket” to attract new audiences (high-net-worth [HNW] investors) and to do so without alienating current clients or internal teams.

Our evolved visual identity is sophisticated yet traditional, simple and approachable, reflecting the right balance of visual evolution, while staying connected to the DNA of the Allworth brand.

This document serves as a reference for how our brand is expressed throughout our marketing communications, experiences and sales enablement tools.

These guidelines outline the process by which the key brand elements—brand signature, typography, color palette, imagery and unifying graphics—are used to create a unified and powerful brand identity.

02

Brand Platform

The brand narrative sets the editorial tone and begins a dialogue that makes our brand more tangible, meaningful and inspiring. The brand narrative serves as a platform from which to build our messaging and should not be used as is for marketing or sales communications.

Vision describes a company's overarching aspirations of what it hopes to achieve or become.

Mission defines the company's business, objectives and strategy to reach its long-term vision.

Values define what a company believes in and how people are expected to behave toward customers and toward each other.

The Allworth Way

Founded as a clear alternative to the self-motivated, sales-focused advisory model that continues to dominate the industry to this day, Allworth's entire business was designed differently.

With unparalleled access to a team of financial experts, your wealth has the advantage every modern investor needs—sophisticated, advanced planning solutions, all under one roof, and directed by one point of contact.

And, while others spend time upselling, quota hunting and giving advice that is in their best interest, our advisors are experienced, full-time, fiduciary financial planning professionals backed by a dedicated support team—meaning you have knowledgeable financial planning experts with the freedom to focus on helping you achieve your goals.

Because, when financial guidance comes with a commitment to put your needs first, and our success is dependent on your success, you get more than just advice.

You get a financial ally for life.

Our Vision

To be a recognized and trusted company that empowers those seeking to live financially confident lives.

Our Mission

Delivering comprehensive financial and investment guidance so people can live rich and meaningful lives.

Our Values

Integrity Being honest and showing a consistent and uncompromising adherence to strong, ethical principles and values.

Collaborative Working together as a team toward a shared goal.

Accountability Consistently showing up and accepting responsibility to accomplish the things you said you'd do.

Respect Giving careful consideration to the ideas, feelings, wishes, rights or traditions of others, as well as to industry regulations.

Enterprising Having drive, determination, persistence, passion and a focus on innovation.

03

Brand Signature

Our brand signature has been refined to reflect our move to attract HNW investors.

The horizontal brand signature is our primary logo and should be used for marketing and sales collateral (both print and digital applications).

The vertical brand signature was created for special usage, such as signage and motion graphics.

Both lockups are available in RGB, CMYK, 1-color black tint, 1-color black solid and 1-color white solid vector files. Use these files to create file formats such as JPGs, PNGs, SVGs for digital, PowerPoint and Word documents. Use EPSs and PDFs for offset/print usage.

Clear space is a spatial tolerance that provides adequate room above, below and to the sides of the brand signature.

The minimum recommended brand signature size should never be smaller than .125 inch (h) or 12 pixels (h).

Contact the Allworth Financial marketing team for the logo set files.

Primary logo: horizontal brand signature

Symbol: PMS 2144C

Wordmark: PMS 295C

Primary brand signature usage:

- All marketing and sales materials (digital and print)
- Email signature
- Specialty applications, e.g., apparel and promotional items (use PMS)
- Correspondence suite: business card, letterhead, envelopes and labels
- Internal banners and posters

Minimum size

Secondary logo: vertical brand signature

Secondary brand signature usage:

- Signage (indoor and outdoor): large-scale application
- Motion graphics: video intro and outro animations

PLEASE NOTE:

Both the primary and secondary logos have the ® on a separate layer in the Illustrator file (see logo set assets). These layers can be turned on and off as needed.

Typography

Playfair Display was chosen for its elegant and timeless look. Lato was chosen for its modern and open sensibilities. Together, these two fonts create a look that is sophisticated and classic—yet modern.

Both Playfair Display and Lato come in multiple weights, making them ideal for body copy, headlines, large callouts, stats and virtually any other typographic category. These fonts should be used exclusively for all sales and marketing collateral.

When creating large stats with numerals, use Playfair Display. Change the OpenType settings from Default Figure Style to Tabular Lining so the numerals all have the same height.

Color Palette

Primary: The primary color palette is infused through all marketing and sales communications. “White” also refers to white space.

Secondary: The secondary color palette is used for infographics, charts/graphs and accents to bring a touch of warmth and sophistication.

Monotone: Black and dark gray should be used for copy and stats. Lighter grays can be used in complicated pie charts if needed.

Neutrals: Neutral colors can be used for text boxes, backgrounds and table color fields. Please note: The Neutral CMYK formulas deviate from standard minimum ink coverage; use sparingly. Special attention may be needed when printing.

Gradients: Light and dark gradients are used with the marquee pattern to create a rich and premium look. Light gradients can be achieved by applying the gradient feather effect to the color shape in InDesign, for example. The subtle dark blue gradient uses both Night and Indigo Blue.

Photography

Color-rich, client-lifestyle imagery conveys “moments of confidence,” highlighting our clients as they look to what’s next for them, their families and their future. The photos have a fly-on-the-wall perspective, giving the imagery an authentic sensibility.

Art direction for lifestyle and portraiture photography:

- To create a cohesive library of images that feels upmarket and sophisticated, select photos that are naturally lit and have accents of blue, green and/or orange.
- Select people who are between 50 and 65 years of age.
- Imagery should have a clear and strong focal point. Look for images with shallow depth of field.
- Select simple and uncluttered photos.
- Eyes are off-camera.

All images are representative only. Not to be used in marketing and sales communications materials unless approved and licensed through the Allworth Financial marketing team.

Misuse

Avoid overly saturated or stock-like imagery.

Avoid muted and clichéd imagery.

Avoid images that feel too posed. Subjects should feel authentic and approachable.

Photography

Naturally lit reportage imagery should feel professional and positive; it should feature teams and individuals at work.

Art direction for reportage imagery:

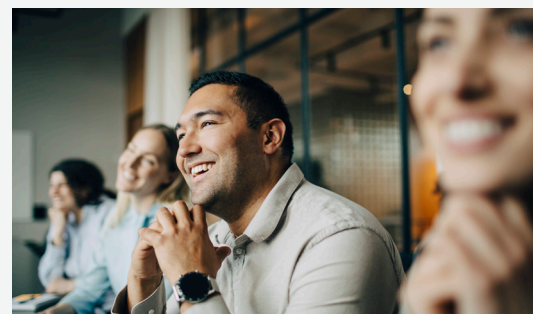

- Select photos that are naturally lit, with highlights of blue, green and/or orange.
- Imagery should have a clear and strong focal point, with shallow depth of field.
- Choose close-up detail images, intimate groupings and environmental office meetings.

Art direction for Allworth employee portraits:

- Lighting should be front and center, to create dynamic and saturated portraits that have depth and dimension.
- Eyes should be on-camera, depicting advisors as approachable and engaged.
- Use a light gray backdrop to create a cohesive feel.
- Attire should be neutral or on-brand, as depicted in the images to the right.

All images are representative only. Not to be used in marketing and sales communications materials unless approved and licensed through the Allworth Financial marketing team.

Conceptual

Simple, graphic conceptual still-life photography can be used to convey abstract concepts. This level of imagery should be used for articles, blogs, etc.

07

Unifying Graphics

This elegant pattern has been designed to be used across all marketing and sales collateral—including digital and printed materials—creating a cohesive and sophisticated look-and-feel.

The pattern is based on the circular geometry of our Iris symbol and represents our comprehensive financial planning approach.

Supergraphic:

This elegant pattern can be used as a large pattern on solid or gradient color backgrounds. This marquee pattern can also be used on premium folders, large-format printing such as retractable banners and trade-show backdrops, and quote text boxes.

Border:

The pattern can be used as a small border treatment to add a touch of sophistication. The pattern fades away from right to left or upward, depending on the application. See pages 12–13 for details.

*To ensure optimal visual clarity, the opacity can be modified as needed. When used on light backgrounds, set the pattern to Multiply rather than Overlay. It is advisable to test all pattern applications prior to final usage and rollout.

Supergraphic on dark backgrounds

Place the large unifying graphic and set its blend mode to Overlay at 40%* opacity.

Apply “gradient feather” effect to the pattern to achieve a subtle fade.

Supergraphic on light backgrounds

Same steps as above.

Border treatment on dark backgrounds

Place the small unifying graphic and set its blend mode to Overlay at 40%* opacity.

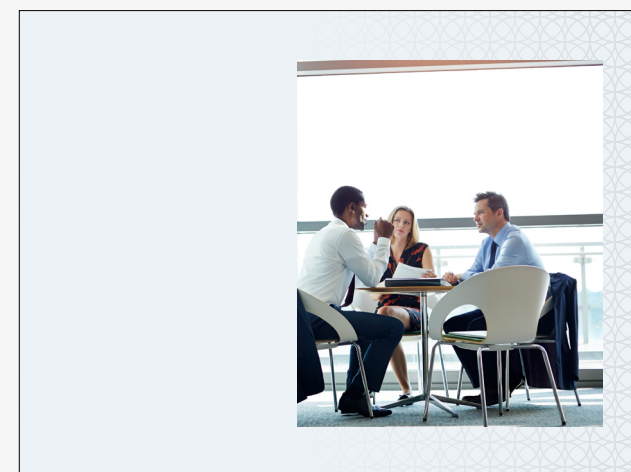

Adjust the size of the graphic so that the circle is one circle wide around the image box, as seen above.

Apply “gradient feather” effect to the pattern to achieve a subtle fade.

In cases like this, ensure the graphic fades to 0% opacity before the image frame edge.

Border treatment on light backgrounds

Same steps as above.

Misuse

Avoid using the secondary color palette.

Use only these approved colors for the backgrounds: Indigo and Night Blue and neutrals.

08

Iconography

Our icons represent ideas, objects or actions. They can communicate messages at a glance, facilitate interactivity and draw attention to important information.

Simple and ultra-thin 1-color/1-stroke icons can be used on either light or dark background colors. See icon colors below and background color options at right.

The Noun Project and iStock are great resources for elegant, ultra-thin icons. You can use these icons as a starting point or you can create your own icons using these simple rules, as seen at right.

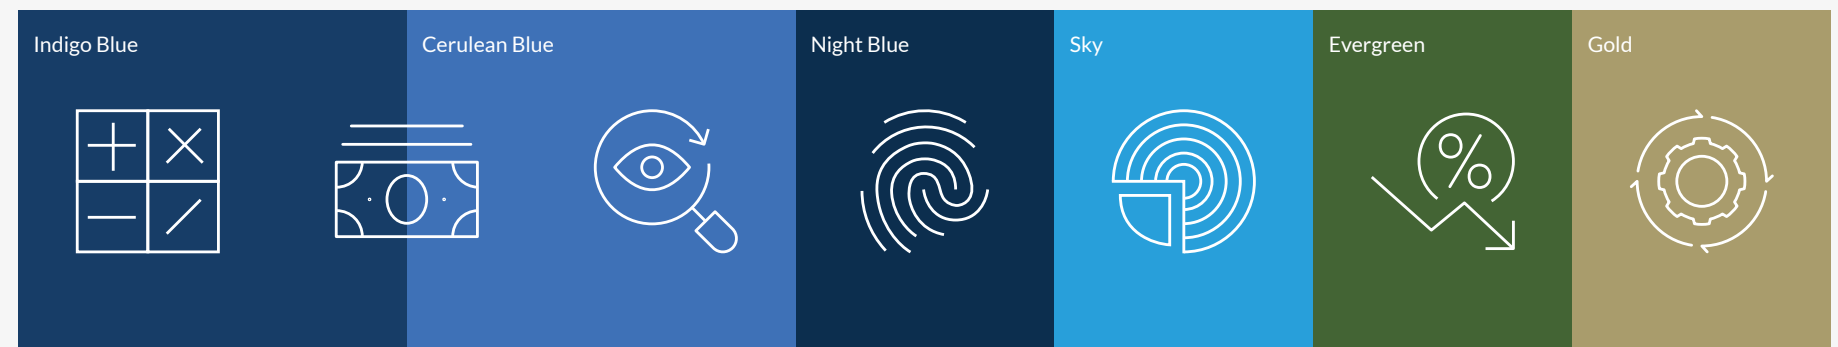

Icon colors:

1-color icons on light backgrounds

1-color (white) reversed icons on dark backgrounds

How to create icons that are consistent across all collateral:

54px/pts

When creating new icons, start with a 54px-square area.

Make sure the stroke weight is 1px or 1pt.

Use only one stroke weight to keep the icons simple and cohesive.

Convert the stroke into a shape so that it will scale up and down accordingly.

Misuse

Stroke must be 1px/pt to ensure legibility: This icon will not reproduce well when reduced.

To create refined icons, avoid using heavier line weights.

Avoid using two or more colors; the goal is to create icons that are simple and elegant.

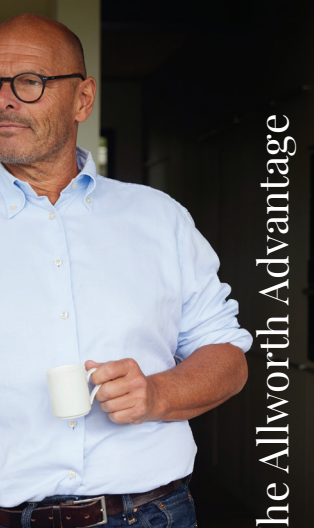

Use only the icon colors specified on the left.

Avoid using tints.
